IN THE LAST WEEK...

We had a fantastic Break the Rules Day—full of fun, laughter, and plenty of creative rule-breaking! Thank you to everyone who took part and helped raise money for the school.

This week we also marked Safer Internet Day, thinking carefully about how we can stay safe when using smart devices and AI. The Children's Commissioner has also produced a helpful guide to support parents in navigating their children's digital lives. You can access the document using the link below.

World Book Day tokens have also been sent home this week. We thought families might like to use them over the half-term break, and there are lots of places where the tokens can be spent. There is also a home-challenge for book week that you might want to start thinking about over the holiday. The details are on Page 4.

Wishing you all a wonderful half term—hopefully with a little more sunshine than rain!
